To my Countrie-men, Readers heereof.

AS a Bride that hath amiable breasts, reacheth also a louelie hand to fasten her Paramour: So conuenient is it to preface an insinuating preface to this euer-newest kinde of Almanacke. Therein I beg not thy suffrage, for thy own modestie may doubt whether thou be acute and ingenious enough to be a iudge of my labours: it a weekes recreation for varietie of studie, no profession of Mathematicke teaching, may be so termed. The weightie considerations that heere I set abroade, required a good paule to meditate sound conclusions; but I let it be but a preamble to the handling of some rarer Scholler, whose hard Natiuitie should make him spurne constellations. Heere may Arachne insult vpon Minerua: heere Demetrius the siluersmith may roare at the losse of his gaine, and reiterate, not great is Diana, but Luna of the Ephesians. But I count their sort but as Cankers that cannot distinguish, though they eate the holie Booke, as well as the prophane. So long may I be capable of delight as I see it not, but on the learned Saints approbation, which I the rather expect because this enterprise is founded on diuine instinct, or on the truth of Diuines. Howsoeuer I may seeme vnmeete by reason of my rawe yeares to vndergoe such weightie matters; that they which fauour them most, dare stand least for their protection. I esteeme not doggerill and plagiarie censurers, that without difference barke at a stranger, a friend and their owne shadowes. In the meane time, for the Churches sake I presume to correct in this trifle (vnworthie of my cares) the practise of manie ages, or (I should say) of Pagan trumperie (for so it is deemed being cleared with an Herball Throng of pamphlet-scribblers) but in sportiue Religious plea I would stirre vp a countercheeke to my rashnesse, if I stand not firmely vpon an inuincible cause. I meane this moueth should be conformable to the practisenesse of true Religion, not giuing hand to Superstition and Delusions. And were anie notable things worthie of wise mens regard therein, it is but to giue a sword to a mad mans hand, to commit on presages and riddles of feigned Signes and Sorceries to the multitude. I would then in steed of me, some professor of authoritie that hath the whole Theoremes of the Mathematicians, would alter the course of Almanack-wrighting, & prescribe a formal president directorie in the dayes & houres, & effects of the two Luminaries, I should reioyce as at the acceptation of my selfe; whose resolute affection to the Mathematicks cannot by this be coniectured. Lately I had cause to deuise Le Muse basse sono nell barcorolo: for that which fitteth the wit of the vnlearned pauisibie, is yet disgraced by a cerdonicall Author. Whereas if Scholliers of note and diuine sight hold practise them, the Mathematicks were able to lend aduice to dell'Abaculo without borrowed legs. To end, I refer them as to confirm my cause, to Master Perkins whole volume against Almanackes. Though he be sufficient, peruse more ouer the Dialogues of the learned Iohannicus Earle of Mirandula: Gil Cornu, Gualterer Anglus, Politianus, Marsilius Ficinus, Cornelius Agrippa, and others whome master Hargyll reciteth in his great Kalender dedicated to the noble Marquesse of Winchester: these are able to conquer the world if the array of words can deuit. These kinde of Bookes require to be set forth negligently: take it in as good a minde and purpose to vse it, as I utter it. I knowe already Gentlemen will curteously embrace it; for their instigation therevnto was a motiue. Thus extraordinaries apparitions in the Heauens at the houre of my Natiuitie, haue produced me to gather out of their motions what may be probable by Art and obseruation: thus farre, where I limit this my preuaricatorie exercise for euer.

to

June 16.

Thine readie to be vsed in any reasonable affection.

Of Eclipses.

Dauid Origanus a learned Germane estimeth there will be two Eclipses farre in the East, both being of the Sonne: it is easie for a skilfull man to feigne more, but the difficultie of precise Art to shewe the bare truth. Euerart his Countryman a warie writer, and Maginus deny any should be. In our horizon I say will be none.

That the prouident Œconomist may thriftily vse his Talent, and spend according to his incomes; I haue calculated here an Arithmeticall Table of Gaine, or Expence, vnder 21. poundes a day by the weeke, the moneth, and by the yeare.
